Nick Morrison Joins Irvine Team as Project Manager

HOUSTON, September 12, 2006 – Irvine Team today announced that Nick Morrison has joined the company as project manager, further strengthening its depth in providing industry-leading project management. The announcement was made by Dennis Irvine, president and CEO of Irvine Team, the nation's leading design + construction strategy company.

Morrison brings to Irvine Team more than four years of experience with the construction of athletic, science, research and healthcare facilities. He was most recently associated with Century Development as a member of the program management team that worked on such high-profile projects as the $120 million Memorial Hermann Heart & Vascular Institute in the world-renowned Texas Medical Center.

A graduate of Texas A&M University, Morrison earned a bachelor of science in construction and received The Distinguished Student Award — Dwight Look College of Engineering.
